- Develop and implement individualized teaching plans to support patients in achieving and maintaining optimal health
- Use sound, independent clinical judgment in patient care decisions based on evidence-based data
- Maintain timely and accurate chart documentation (within 48-hour timeline, 95% of the time)
- Complete fee slips with appropriately matching diagnosis and procedure codes
- Meet productivity expectations (minimum 3,400 encounters per year, full-time equivalent)
- Provide care coordination through daily huddles as part of the PCMH model
- Identify at-risk patient populations and monitor panel-specific population health
- Empower patients through self-management education and discharge planning
- Advocate for patients by explaining all procedures and treatment plans prior to execution
- Participate in quality management, peer review, and departmental practice development
- Support clinical education of other health professionals including student nurse practitioners
- Maintain all required annual training (HIPAA, Cultural Diversity, BBP, Sexual Harassment)

Qualifications

- Graduate of an accredited NP program (required)
- Current RN and NP licensure in the State of Washington (required)
- Prescriptive authority from Washington State (required)
- Previous experience in a patient care setting (required)
- Experience in minor surgical techniques (preferred)

- Strong knowledge of the nursing process including assessment, planning, implementation, and evaluation
